The Ninth Street Subway.

The engineering department of the National railways has ratified the plans for the Ninth street subway, and the first is clear in the planning at once with the construction. The undertaking is a large one and will employ a large number of men for a good part of the summer. As summer has been fairly plentiful in other building operations it is perhaps as well that this demand for labor was not opened until the farmers had a chance to secure help for seeding and summer work. There is apparently a local labor supply quite equal to the requirements and no danger of the enterprise lagging for want of available workmen.

Out of the Dump.

Because this is a wheat country, nowhere else in the world is the public temperament more susceptible to climate influence. Changes of the weather react with surprising suddenness and power upon popular sentiment, and therefore upon business. Western newspapers are now as unanimously and noticeably cheerful over the conditions and prospects as a few weeks ago they were dour over the possible consequences of the delayed seeding. In this respect a saving of credit is clearly being made from uncertainty to confidence. There is now recognized to be no reason to suppose that the crop will not be a good one, and every possibility that it may be a "bumper" one. That change in sentiment has already made itself apparent in increased buying and selling and in very general improvement in business conditions.

The Coal Rates Case.

The Railway Commission is hearing experts, representing the railways and railway patrons respectively, as to the cost of hauling Alberta coal to Ontario. It is said that the estimates of the experts differ chiefly because of a difference in their calculations as to the cost of repairing box cars. If they are in substantial agreement as to the cost of service in other respects, there would seem to be at least a fair chance that railways may not be able to make the claim for a rate more than the $7 rate which seems to be the deadline. The traffic man who prepared the case for the Ontario Government gives the cost to the railways for hauling coal from Edmonton to Toronto at $5.03 a ton. The coal trade can hardly be so devastating to the rolling stock that it would make more than $2.97 per ton to fix up a box car after it had carried a load to Toronto.

A Chance For Real Service.

Premier Ferguson wants the descendants of Hon. George Brown and Sir John Macdonald to foregather on Dominion Day. And he hands in a list of the names of the achievements of these great leaders. No doubt the gathering would be a notable one, but why the people of this country should be interested in the achievements of these great leaders, all those who sat about the council board in Confederation days could be got together, the assembly would be far more representative. And perhaps among them could be served something "along the line of constructive politics" in keeping with the great ideals and broad outlook of their countrymen. It would be a benefit, if by this or some other means, there could be imparted to the parties of today something of the deadly earnestness and the sterling devotion to country and conviction which made the "Fathers" great, and which, through their efforts, brought the Dominion into organic existence.

Sugar-Coating the Pill.

The state department at Washington has modified the tone of the most striking of the new ruling against Canadian residents who work on the other side of the line. Mr. Kellogg's message to Mr. Massey is a model of a friendly way to announce unwelcome tidings. It shows that while the U. S. authorities are bound to conserve employment for the residents of their own country, they are also anxious to preserve the most cordial relations with Canada.

That is excellent so far as it goes. But it does not provide jobs in Canada for Canadians who now cross the border daily to find employment. No does it absolve Canada from the obligation to take the most active part from the standpoint of its own interests and those of its own citizens. Putting a check on the export of Canadian raw materials to U. S. factories might help Washington to make up its mind to take another step at the proposition to exclude Canadian residents from earning a living in those factories.

Where the Law Protects and Why.

It has remained for a Chicago judge to draw what is perhaps the most striking contrast yet made between crime conditions in England and Wales and in the United States, and the judicial procedure which helps to account for that difference. Speaking at Windsor, Ont., Judge Kavanagh said there were 12,000 people killed unlawfully or killed while performing unlawful acts in the United States last year, against 246 in England and Wales. There was no mystery, he said, as to the reason for the disparity.

mitting a homicide in England or Wales knows that in all human probability within six or seven weeks he will climb the gallows stairs for it. A man in the United States who is about about committing a homicide knows that if he is careful there are six or seven chances to one that he will not be caught; but if he is not careful he will be caught, and he will be hanged. There you have the whole secret." Coming from a Chicago judge the hint is particularly valuable to Canadians who to which line of precedent they should follow if they want to protect their lives.

Pushing Sales of Food-Stuffs.
Parliament at the last session voted $100,000 to be spent in advertising Canadian food products in Great Britain, the producers to put up dollar for dollar of the cost of the publicity. The Canadian Horticultural Society is applying to the Government to spend $30,000 of the amount in popularizing Canadian apples in the old lands and, of course, offers to put up a like amount for the same purpose. This would seem to be a good time for organizations representing other branches of Canadian food production to undertake a like campaign. Russia is the greatest potential source of export agricultural products in Europe. The treachery of its Government has deprived Russia of official recognition in Britain and has blacklisted its products in the minds of British buyers. Canadian producers may see in this situation an improved opportunity to push the sales of their products in Britain. Disregarding tropical and sub-tropical productions, Britain imports nothing in the way of food-stuffs that Canada does not produce, and could not produce in enormous export quantities. Advertising pays the merchant and the manufacturer. Why not try what it can do to stimulate the demand in Britain for Canadian butter, eggs, honey and a dozen other farm-produced commodities?

That Boy
By EDGAR A. GUEST
He's living in it all over the horizon that I know, he's doing in his fourteenth year just what I used to do. At 17 and 18 he's back and watch the lad repeating all the pleasures and all the tricks I had. At fourteen I was that way, that I threw a ball, my stomach with that way, Oh, I've been through it all. In every game I thought to give the fellows on the ground with my line was gone.

No evening finds him tattered and thick with dust and there he stands before us with the buttons off. "Was over boy so dirty?" sighs his mother in despair. I look at him and chuckle for the line I am giving him.

"Just look at him," she mutters. "Has he no pride at all?"
As if he thought for naughtiness could win a game or gain.
I gaze at him and chuckle for true to life I know. There stands the boy that I was just thirty years ago.

GUARDING AGAINST COLDS

There is some truth in the common statement that a "cold" is a cold. The immediate irritating cause which often starts a cold is the breathing in of dust containing irritating bacilli which are ever present in the air above us. If we breathe in this air into our lungs and mouth these bacteria catch on the mucous membranes and begin to propagate if there is sufficient soil in which to grow.

If the mucous membrane on the inside of the nose is discharging an over-acid secretion, these micro-organisms will develop very rapidly. This secretion can only come from a blood stream loaded with the by-products of imperfect metabolism. excess food of all kinds, which is digested and assimilated, adding an extra amount of morbid material the blood plasma must carry around the body until it is eliminated.

These heavily laden blood passes through all parts of the body from the feet to the head, and when passing through the mucous membranes, if there is too much irritation there, the tendency is for these waste products to eliminate in the form of excessive mucus.

There is a normal fluid secreted by the mucous membranes and the only way this mucus through which to throw bodily impurities when a cold is present. Through this discharge of mucus the irritating bacteria are thrown away from the membrane and cleared out by nose-blowing, and if the throat is in perfect condition, no invasion of bacteria can take place and a cold cannot develop.

Intoxication must be also cited as a principal cause of colds. If the blood is filled with waste products, material come in contact with irritants, the system is overworked, or tired, a serious cold can catch within a few hours. Working too hard, overeating, drinking too much, and sleeping too little, and other causes, all tend to weaken the body's vitality and lower the resistance, so that the body is not able to ward off the onset of a cold.

It is very easy to catch a cold or acute colds must remember to avoid too large an amount of the "heavy" foods, such as the starches and proteins. Special care must be exercised towards the end of the winter to cut down on these kinds of foods so that when the warmer weather of spring comes the blood will be so clean that it will be able to ward off any food material.

The first few warm days of spring bring on over one hundred thousands of cases of colds in the continent alone. There is a great deal of the present time over one hundred thousand cases of colds in the continent alone. There is a great deal of the present time over one hundred thousand cases of colds in the continent alone.

THE ENTENTE COORDIE
It was not caprice or accident that brought England and France together after a century of enmity. It was the sense of common danger, which might be averted by their united strength. It is even believed by most Continental authorities on the diplomatic side, that the weeks immediately preceding the war that had brought about the entente were the definite alliance Germany would have been the victor in the world.
